

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE
ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL

'Love all. Trust a few.
Do wrong to none'

Helena is convinced that she and wealthy Bertram are #CoupleGoals. He's not so sure.

After engineering their betrothal, Helena will go to any length to bring her idealised version of romance to life. But what happens when the reality of their relationship doesn't match up to the fantasy? And do the ends always justify the means?

Director Blanche McIntyre's offbeat anti-romcom explores the modern resonance of Shakespeare's enduring dark comedy.
